

Verilite tests Sunbird structure

Verilite Aircraft has received a $119,000 contract from the New Mexico Research and Development Institute to test the all-composite structure of its Sunbird "affordable aircraft". The funding will permit testing of wing, aileron, and flap components. The test programme will take into account the effect of manufacturing variables and environmental factors involved in operations in hot or humid climates.

FLIGHT INTERNATIONAL, 28 May 1988